

Baltimore's Transit Future

We are stronger by working together. Join us to support the gameplan for a modern transit system.

The time for action is now.

The residents and business of Maryland's largest city and surrounding suburbs deserve a world-class transit system.

Actions to address the six priorities of this strategy will set the course for a more equitable transportation system, making the Baltimore region a more attractive place to live, work, play, and build a business.

The Greater Baltimore Committee and Greater Washington Partnership stand ready to work with leaders and partners throughout the region to deliver on this promise.

The Six Priorities of the Strategy to Advance Baltimore's Transit Future

-  Address MTA Repair Backlog & Operator Shortage
-  Establish Frequent, Reliable Bus Service to all Regional Job Centers
-  Support Regional Coordination, Decision Making, and Funding
-  Implement a 10-Year Rapid Transit Expansion Program
-  Prioritize Regional Rail Investment
-  Catalyze Equitable Development at Transit and Rail Stations

We need your help.

The Baltimore region has not seen major expansion of its transit system in nearly a quarter century and service today is too unreliable, infrequent, and disjointed. This impacts our students, our families, our seniors, our businesses, and the economic health and vitality of the Baltimore region.

To see change, it is our collective responsibility to voice and express our shared interests. The more our elected, business, and civic leaders are aligned behind a message that better transit is essential to your success, the economic and social health of the Baltimore region, and that transit is a critical tool to close race- and income-based inequities, the faster we will see progress.

Please consider joining the Greater Baltimore Committee and Greater Washington Partnership to champion the Baltimore's Transit Future strategy.
